

1. The front of the lamp.

2. Screw up the air cavity with a fully adhesive rubber spring

3. Add a new discharge adjustment system and a cover

Working with the discharge adjustment system is a critical step in the process of adjusting the lamp. The discharge adjustment system is a complex system that allows the user to adjust the lamp's output. The discharge adjustment system is a critical component of the lamp's internal structure. The discharge adjustment system is a critical component of the lamp's internal structure.

The discharge adjustment system is a critical component of the lamp's internal structure. The discharge adjustment system is a critical component of the lamp's internal structure. The discharge adjustment system is a critical component of the lamp's internal structure.

4. Complete the lamp

4. Complete the lamp

4. Complete the lamp