

Surface measurement

With the float measuring it is possible to detect the surface level of every liquid

LI can also be used as interface measurement between two liquids with a density deviation of minimum 0.1 g/cm^3

